Tax center files 416 returns

Tax season is the most dreaded time of the year for many. Soldiers and military retirees at Fort Jackson, however, have the resources to get through what can be a frustrating experience.

The Fort Jackson Tax Center, which opened its doors Jan. 15, has helped 416 Soldiers and retirees so far, and received more than 800 phone calls. The deadline to file 2006 state and federal taxes is April 17.

According to the Internal Revenue Service Web site, www.irs.gov, taxpayers will have extra time to file because the normal deadline, April 15, falls on a Sunday, and the following day is Emancipation Day, a legal holiday in the District of Columbia.

Those who have used the tax center this year have saved more than $35,000 in preparation fees since it opened, according to Capt. Chris Roten, Tax Center officer in

"Appointments are still filling up, but we expect they will decline shortly and then pick back up the first of April," Roten said. "We are slightly ahead at this point of the number of people we have helped."

The tax center has made two big changes for those who have previously used the program. First, the center has moved and is now located in Building R2101 on the corner of Marion Avenue and Supply Road. A "1040EZ Drop Off" has also been introduced at the location. This allows eligible members to drop off tax forms, have qualified tax pre-

Black History Month celebration slated for Tuesday

Heath Hamacher

Leader Staff

The 165th Infantry Brigade will host the Black History Month Celebration at the MG Robert B. Solomon Center from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m., Tuesday.

The theme for this year's celebration is "From Slavery to Freedom: The Story of African Americans in the Americas.

The theme recalls blacks' long journey to freedom. It honors the courage and persistence of heroes who called upon the nation to live up to its founding promise of equality among all people.

"The theme comes from the Department of Defense, and it changes each year," said Sgt. 1st Class Angin Lawrence, 165th Inf. Bde. "This year's theme recognized the struggles African Americans have endured to get where they are today.'

In addition to a luncheon, the celebration will include art displays and vendors, ethnic singing and dancing, and a guest speaker, Chaplain (Col.) Clarke L. McGriff, U.S. Army Chaplain Center and School commandant. A 25-year Army veteran, McGriff is the first black to hold this position.

Black History Month Luncheon

11:30 a.m., Feb. 20 Tickets $8

"There will be several types of entertainment," Lawrence said. "The Daniel Circle Mass Choir will sing, the Ayoluwa African Dance Theater, which incorporates African drums in their routine, will perform African music and dances, a praise dancer will dance to gospel music and the 282nd Army 'Victory'

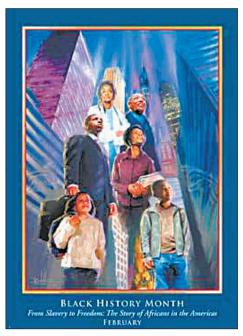

Band jazz ensemble will perform before the luncheon."

Those planning to attend are encouraged to come as early as 10 a.m. to view art displays and check out local ethnic vendors, who will have merchandise for sale.

"There will be local artists, as well as students' artwork from local schools displayed," Lawrence said. "In addition, the Fort Jackson Museum and the Equal Opportunity Office will have historical displays depicting important African Americans and honoring the struggles of blacks."

Tickets cost $8 each and have been on sale since Jan. 19. Tickets must be purchased by Friday, and those interested should contact their unit Equal Opportunity representative or brigade Equal Opportunity adviser. There will be no tickets sold at the door.

For more information on this event, call Sgt. 1st Class Angin Lawrence at 751-4247. Heath.Hamacher@jackson.army.mil

Fuel cells to be tested at Fort Jackson

Kristen Marquez Leader Staff

The recent declaration by President Bush that the United States needs to lessen its dependence on foreign oil has been taken to heart by the Fort Jackson Directorate of Logistics and Engineering, which has entered into a partnership with state agencies to help develop fuel cells.

A fuel cell harnesses the energy from hydrogen, the most abundant element in the universe, and uses it to generate electricity. The energy created by fuel cells can be used to power vehicles, as well as heat, cool and power buildings.

"It (hydrogen) can be captured from natural gas, it can be captured from biomass products, methane gas, even from water," said Georges Dib, DLE energy manager. "The fuel cell basically harnesses the chemical energy of the hydrogen to generate electricity without combustion or pollution."

Dib said Fort Jackson is part of the partnership because "we want to take the lead. (We are doing this) to improve technology and to improve the quality of life of our community, our installation and to provide a better lifestyle for the Soldiers."

The University of South Carolina, the South Carolina Research Authority and numerous other outside vendors, manufacturers and research entities are in partnership with Fort Jackson

It is basically a five-year request for funding to improve technology locally that could eventually provide energy independence.

"Our partnership is very strong," Dib said. "Our commitment to the environment, our commitment to research and development is being demonstrated through our leadership here."

From the small demonstration being conducted here, Dib said the hope is that the result can be converted to a tactical use. It could provide a way for military vehicles to travel lighter and faster since they wouldn't be carrying so much heavy fuel.

Also, the process of the chemical reaction of capturing the hydrogen can generate heat, so a house can be heated as a byproduct. As long as there is a fuel cell, heat and electricity are available with no pollution to the air, Dib said.

"It's a win-win for us, for our community, for our military and for our country," Dib said. "The ultimate goal is that each resident living in the country would have a small hydrogen fuel cell next to their house, next to their apartment, where they can drive their car and plug it in while they are at home, and the next day they pull the plug and drive."

Hydrogen has high energy for its weight, but low energy for its volume, so new technology is needed to store and transport it. Researchers have three goals in mind when working on the fuel cells: improve fuel cell technology and materials needed for fuel cells; develop technology to efficiently and cost-effectively make hydrogen from renewable energy sources, and develop technology to efficiently and cost-effectively store and transport hydrogen.

For more information on the fuel cell research at Fort Jackson, call 751-3823.

Soldiers like FCS test systems so much, they don't want to return them

Fred W. Baker III

Army News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 — Testing for some of the systems slated for the first "spin out" of the Army's Future Combat Systems program has gone well, except for one minor glitch: the Soldiers testing them don't want to give the prototypes back.

"They won't give me back my stuff," joked Maj. Gen. Charles A. Cartwright, program manager for the Future Combat Systems Brigade Combat Team, as he briefed reporters on the progress of the program at the Pentagon last week.

The FCS is a "family" of a variety of manned and unmanned vehicles, sensors, launch systems and unmanned aerial vehicles. All are connected by a common network with the Soldier. Some systems within the family are marked for an early fielding in an effort to get the technologies to the Soldier as early as fiscal 2008.

Dubbed Experiment 1.1, the testing ran in three phases, starting in July 2006 and finishing this month. Already, some of the systems are garnering rave reviews from the combat veterans testing them. It was the first time that Soldiers collectively employed FCS systems in "live" training and used the system's computer-based training support package, officials said.

"They loved it," said Col. Charles C. Bush, FCS division chief. "What the FCS spin-out is all about is getting information down to the Soldier level so they can use it. Experiment 1.1 was designed to test the tools that will get them more tactical information on the battlefield."

Soldiers tested the initial version of the network operating system, the joint tactical radio system, the tactical and urban unattended ground sensors, the small unmanned ground vehicle, the Class I unmanned aerial vehicle and the non-line-of-sight launch system.

Officials taped responses from the Soldiers testing the equipment and played them at the briefing. The common theme among the mix of commissioned and non-commissioned officers was that using the new systems will save lives in combat. The systems worked together to increase efficiency and mitigate risks to Soldiers. The combat veterans extolled the usefulness of the equipment, giving examples of actual fights in Iraq where they could have used the systems.

"I became a big believer," one NCO said.

"All they need to do is get it out to the Soldier and start training on it," another

One Soldier said the robot vehicles, sensors and the unmanned aerial vehicles help eliminate what he referred to as "The Big 'What if?"

Robots can be sent into buildings instead of Soldiers to identify booby traps and insurgents. Unmanned aerial vehicles can be flown over hills and walls, allowing Soldiers to see what is on the other side. The sensors can be placed on flanks and in buildings to detect enemy movement. All are tied to a network that the Soldier can monitor on a screen mounted in his

It's about seeing the enemy before he sees you, Bush said.

"Instead of sending 'Private Snuffy' in the room to see if there is a booby trap, you send a robot in there," Bush said. "From a tactical perspective, giving the Soldier the ability to see inside a room is pretty powerful."

Two Soldiers testing the robot vehicle agreed.

"It would have saved our lives," one said, referring to a booby trap discovered by the robot vehicle during the testing.

Bush said nothing like the tactical and urban sensors are currently fielded at the Soldier level. Some sensors are used by specialized military intelligence units, but that information is not immediately accessible by the Soldier at a squad or platoon level. An earlier prototype of the small unmanned ground vehicle is being used in Iraq to investigate tunnels and possible IEDs, he said.

The Class I unmanned aerial vehicle was tested in Hawaii by 29th Infantry Division Soldiers working through a mission readiness exercise.

"The Soldiers loved that thing," Bush trainers, though, because the Soldiers were finding all of the "planted" roadside bombs and taking alternative routes. As a result, they were missing out on intentional training on how to react to an IED.

"It gives them ability to see the enemy before they run into them, and lets them maneuver more effectively," Bush said.

The FCS systems will also help Soldiers make better, faster decisions on the battle-field. A sensor will let them know, for example, that a vehicle is approaching, and video from the sensor will let the Soldier know if it is a suspicious vehicle.

"It will put capabilities into the hands of Soldiers that they don't have now," Bush said.

"It's tough in that kind of environment to identify one individual from another individual — who's the terrorist," he said. "The more tools you give the Soldier the easier it is."

The bottom line for the combat veterans testing the new systems was that robots, sensors and information on the battlefield translate to more troops coming home alive.

"If the robot gets blown up, oh well. You still have a Soldier with you," an NCO said.

One combat commander said if his unit had had the systems in Iraq, it would have saved an NCO's life, his squad leader's legs and his team leader's hand.

The initial version of the network operating system, the joint tactical radio system, the tactical and urban unattended ground sensors and the non-line-of-sight launch system are funded for the first spinout of FCS systems starting in fiscal 2008.

There is no funding currently for the small unmanned ground vehicle and the Class I unmanned aerial vehicle for the first spin-out. They are slated as options in spin-out 2, if funding is available.

Training the Army's money managers

Chris Rasmussen Leader Staff

A new breed of Army financial experts is being trained at Fort Jackson to handle the rigors of supporting operational commanders in the Global War on Terrorism.

Six Soldiers graduated in January from the inaugural FA 45 Intermediate Level Education class, a 13-week comptroller course that trains officers to be resource managers.

"We are training officers to get the most bang for the Army's buck to support commanders downrange in support of the Global War on Terror," said Lt. Col. Karl Lindquist, Financial Management Division chief for the U.S. Army Financial Management School.

A comptroller provides recommendations to the commander on policy that meets current statutory and regulatory guidance, as well as with the guidance/policies issued by higher headquarters. This military occupational specialty also performs a myriad of tasks such as developing command resource requirements, identifying sources of funding, establishing a management control process, performing other managerial, reimbursement procedures, contingency operations and monitoring the execution of logistics civil augmentation program.

"Financial Management is an essential element of maintaining a ready and expeditious Army," said Col. Billy Smith, commandant of the U.S. Army Financial Management School. "The FM ILE Course at Fort Jackson trains field grade officers to assume duties of increased responsibility, and more importantly, prepares them to handle the rigors of supporting our operational commanders in a deployed environment."

Students in the course learn how the Army generates revenue, controls costs and leverages resources. Financial Management across the spectrum of operations, to include joint and combined environments, along with managing multi-national funds is a vital part of the curriculum, as well.

The majority of the Soldiers who will take this course are Financial Management officers with between eight and 12 years of service.

"This is the first exposure they have had to being a comptroller and we strive to get across the importance of taking care of taxpayer's dollars," said Maj. Charles Bledsoe, course instructor. "A lot of these officers have deployed or are getting ready to deploy and they have a lot of responsibility to make sure that money is spent wisely on the right things."

During the course, Soldiers will typically go on two to three field trips to other military installations. For the inaugural class, Soldiers visited Shaw Air Force Base and learned how they interact with the Army and other services and federal agencies. They also traveled to Fort McPherson, Ga., to visit with the Third Army and U.S. Army Forces Command. The students received several informational briefings on resource management operations and challenges faced in Iraq and Afghanistan. They also got an indepth look on the changes taking place within FORSCOM, and how they are adapting to change.

Guest speakers from operational units serving at Fort Bragg, N.C., Fort McPherson, Ga., CENTCOM/Special Operations Command and/or Pentagon come to discuss current issues, methods and problems.

Before graduating, students also complete a four-day Capstone Exercise, where they conduct a scenario-based Financial Management mission and build a budget from POM (Program Objective Memorandum) to Execution Stage.

"With the recent graduation of our inaugural ILE class, I am confident these officers understand the complexities and challenges involved with supporting commanders as we fight the Global War on Terrorism," Smith said.

Active Army meets January recruiting goals

Sgt. Sara Wood

Army News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 — The active Army exceeded its recruiting goals for January, the Defense Department announced Monday.

The Army achieved 111 percent of its goal with 9,306 troops. The National Guard achieved more than 100 percent of its goal, and the Army Reserve was at 99 percent.

The active and reserve components also met 109 percent their year-to-date retention missions.

The Army's recruiting numbers may get an added boost in March after the Army launches a traveling, virtual reality exhibit. The Virtual Army Experience is a high-tech, team-based experience designed to immerse visitors in the operational roles of Soldiers.

The 10,000-square-foot interactive exhibit brings the Army's exceptionally popular computer game, "America's Army: Special Forces (Overmatch)," to a life-size networked world. In the Virtual Army Experience, participants employ teamwork, leadership and high-tech equipment as they take part in a hands-on virtual mission to capture a terrorist leader.

The Virtual Army Experience debuts this week at Speedweek in Daytona, Fla., and will deploy to 35 events around the nation.

"The Virtual Army Experience provides visitors with unparalleled insight into today's high-tech Army, in which smart, capable Soldiers work within elite teams to master the most complex and demanding situations," said Col. Casey Wardynski, project director for America's Army and originator of the concept for the Virtual Army Experience.

"Upon entering the Virtual Army Experience, visitors meet virtual members of their team — skilled professionals in fields ranging from aviation to communications. From this point forward, visitors gain an appreciation of the degree to which the Army prepares young adults to be confident, skilled and trusted," he said.

ACS Relocation Readiness Program

Helping Soldiers, families move, make a home

Kristen Marquez Leader Staff

For Soldiers and families facing a permanent change of station, the Army Community Service Relocation Readiness Program helps make the transition a little easier.

ACS's relocation program offers assistance for just about everything relating to a military move. Not only does it offer relocation assistance and counseling, it also offers welcome packets, a post newcomer's orientation, sponsorship training and support for families left here when their Soldier may be deployed or on an unaccompanied tour.

"This is a program designed to assist Soldiers and their families when they are PCSing either into Fort Jackson or getting ready to PCS out of Fort Jackson," said Tom Askey, ACS relocation manager. "One of the mantras that we have is that Soldiers and their families live a mobile military lifestyle with all the stressors and changes that come up in making moves every several years, and the relocation readiness program attempts to support and assist Soldiers and their families in many ways when they are making moves."

Askey said he likes to sit down and talk with as many incoming and inprocessing Soldiers as he can. He likes to give them "a chance to catch their breath," reflect on the move and also see what they are looking for in the future.

One of the first things he discusses with Soldiers is Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. He said by doing this, he is giving them the encouragement that people here are aware and concerned. He also lets them know about the hospital's Helping Everyone Reach Optimum Strength group and Military OneSource.

Each Soldier who goes to Relocation Readiness is provided with a welcome packet. The packets include information about Fort Jackson, Columbia and the surrounding area.

Sometimes, families arrive at a new installation before their household goods. The ACS Lending Closet is available to help when that happens. Items such as pots, pans, ironing boards, microwaves, brooms, mops and children's items such as strollers, high chairs and car seats are available on loan for about 30 days, but extensions can be granted under certain circumstances, Askey said.

The Standard Installation Topic Exchange Service, or SITES, Web site provides information on military installations world wide. It is an automated system and can be found at www.dmdc.osd.mil/sites.

The Post Newcomer's Orientation occurs on the first Wednesday of every month. Askey recommends new Soldiers and spouses attend the briefing as soon as they can. The next briefing is scheduled for 9 a.m., March 7 at the Post Conference Room. Child care is provided at no charge, but reservations must be made at least 24 hours in advance by calling 751-1972.

"It is their chance to meet members of the command group and also hear from speakers from some key agencies on post," Askey said.

Relocation Readiness also can assist Soldiers who have been tasked to help other incoming Soldiers. Sponsorship Training provides information to Soldiers so they can become better sponsors.

"We remind them of several simple things they can do to become a really effective sponsor," Askey said.

ACS Relocation Readiness also sends newsletters and provides support for waiting families — those who have a Soldier either deployed or serving an unaccompanied tour.

"We mostly want them to know that we are here for them and we make our presence known and our contact information through the newsletters, telling them to give us a call if we can be of assistance," Askey said.

Askey also organized a committee that meets quarterly, called the Relocation Assistance Coordinating Committee. The RACC is a group of representatives from agencies that handle Soldiers when they are arriving or departing, such as housing, finance and resource management.

They try to coordinate issues pertaining to the arrival and departure process. They recently created a brochure, "Lifeline to inprocessing at Fort Jackson," and provide it to Soldiers when they arrive.

Well-Being Corner

Road signs, pet abuse, PX parking lot topics addressed

Tanya Brown AFAP Coordinator

This week's article continues to focus on issues and responses submitted during fiscal year 2007 first quarter. The issues affect the Directorate of Emergency Service; garrison and the Directorate of Logistics and Engineering.

The first issue involves concern of a community member about safety at Gate 2 on family and graduation days. The community member said on family and graduation days the traffic coming into Gate 2 (Forest Drive) is congested from 7:30-9 a.m. Visitors seem confused as to which lane to get into until they are directly in front of the gate. Visitors do not look at the signs above the gates due to moving traffic.

The recommendation is to place lane signs (approximately 3 feet in height) on the road during these two days. The lane signs would designate which lane is for visitors versus those with military ID cards.

DLE responded that all lanes are open to visitors on graduation and family days. This change was made during the previous summer to alleviate any confusion for families who visit the installation on Thursday and Friday. Additionally DES gate personnel have coordinated with Directorate of Plans, Training and Mobilization for the graduating units to hand out quick and easy to understand maps in all lanes and at all gates on graduation and family days.

The second issue was a concern about mistreatment of pets in the housing areas. Several residents have noted that children are mistreating pets in the housing area playgrounds and common areas. This falls under cruelty to animals and should not be tolerated on a military installation. The recommendation is to (1) have the garrison communicate through the media that sponsors and family members can be held liable for this offense; and (2) develop a reporting system that does not identify those reporting an incident. The response from garrison is that anonymous reports of animal abuse may be made to the Provost Marshal Office. However, acts of abuse that are witnessed and have no visible signs or symptoms require a witness and cannot be anonymous.

Residents should report any and all signs of animal abuse to PMO. Law enforcement personnel will respond and report any maltreatment of animals to the garrison chain of command for action.

The third issue has to do with the post exchange parking lot entrance. A community member said the entrance to the parking lot is too restricted. This leads to an increased risk of accidents and unnecessary congestion entering the PX parking lot. The recommendation is to create additional entrances into the main PX parking lot. This should include an enhanced rear entrance to the PX parking lot.

The response from DES and DLE are:

DES

(1) A request to DLE was submitted in late December to add an additional exit to the PX parking lot. This exit is intended to be an exit-only lane that will alleviate congestion from vehicles entering and exiting the exchange parking lot from one location. Planning of construction and entrances and exits to parking lots and public areas is the responsibility of DLE and we will continue to follow-up on this until complete; and

DLE

(2) DLE has currently submitted a DA 4283 on behalf of Army and Air Force Exchange Services to have a cost estimate done. The manager said it is standard practice during family and graduation days for patrons to use the rear entrance and that AAFES does not currently have a problem with the usage. The cost estimate will be executed on a second quarter funding contract. The Well-Being Corner will update you as information is received.

As a reminder, submit issues through the Well-Being home page or Community FIRST/AFAP Interactive Customer Evaluation link, whether it affects here at Fort Jackson or throughout the Army, feedback is important. Submit issues and recommendations online at http://www.jackson.army.mil/WellBeing/wellbeing.htm Click on "Submit an Issue or Recommendation" or click on the AFAP Logo to submit an issue.

ICE Appreciation

The garrison would like to congratulate the Fort Jackson DLE, Logistics Services Division, specifically the Ammunition Supply Point and the DMWR, Business Operations Division, specifically Anderson Hall Lodging. They have maintained a 4.80 and a 4.79 percent rating, respectively, in employee/staff attitude out of a possible 5.0, for a 12-week period. This is an outstanding performance in customer satisfaction. Keep up the good work.

Training Soldiers for IED awareness

Chris Rasmussen Leader Staff

A soda can covered in black tape with a wire sticking out sits on a dining facility table. A gray artillery shell sits on top of a projector in a battalion classroom. A land mine is hidden underneath a stairwell

These are hidden simulated Improvised Explosive Devices, and Soldiers are being introduced to them from the beginning of Basic Combat Training in an effort to boost their situational awareness.

"IEDs are the No. 1 killer in Iraq and Afghanistan and we are trying to teach these Soldiers to be aware of their surroundings from day one," said Lt. Col Kenneth Royalty, 1st Battalion, 34th Infantry Regiment commander.

IED awareness typically begins with bringing Soldiers in a classroom and having them familiarize themselves with everything in it. The next time they enter the classroom, an IED is placed somewhere obvious in the room.

As the weeks go on, drill sergeants hide IEDs in less obvious places and challenge their Soldiers to find them.

"When Soldiers come here to basic training they are more concerned with following what their drill sergeant is telling them to do, but we are raising the bar and emphasizing situational awareness," said Capt. William Toles, Company C, 1st Bn., 34th Inf. Reg. commander. "We are teaching them that if they see something out of the ordinary, to let us know."

Soldiers are given an IED briefing during their first week and are taught the "5 Cs" of encountering a roadside bomb. If a suspicious item is found, Soldiers are taught to: Confirm, clear, call, cordon and control

"Not only do we teach them to look out for IEDs, but you also have to look out for clues that an IED may be around such as a stalled car or somebody sitting on a hill," Toles said. "Other indicators could be graffiti that wasn't there the day before or no children playing in an area where they usually are."

By the fourth or fifth week of BCT, IEDs are placed in the field near their training exercises.

"Anytime they go to a training event, they immediately begin searching the area for any IEDs," Toles said. "If they fail to locate one, there are consequences. We may take five Soldiers from the group and say they are now dead and the rest of the squad must complete their task with five less people."

IED awareness training is also implemented during Victory Anvil, Victory Hammer and Victory Forge field training exercises. Grenade simulators, artillery simulators and other devices are used to make the training more realistic.

"When we hit Victory Forge, the Soldiers are seeing the same amount of IEDs as they would see in Iraq or Afghanistan," Royalty said.

IEDs are easily made by enemy combatants using materials found in local stores and unused explosives left over from the former Iraqi regime and other sources. They can be disguised to look like any object and are often hidden roadside among debris.

Common roadside IEDs include artillery and mortar rounds covered with dirt, rocks or trash. Other IEDs may be as innocent looking as a soda, oil or paint can filled with explosives. IEDs can be detonated by one of two ways: remote control or direct. And blasting caps, which can be set off by any kind of battery, are readily available.

"You can walk over an IED and lose a leg, or lose your life," said Pvt. Joshua

Soldiers get 'Fit to Win'

Heath Hamacher

Leader Staff

It's the third week of training for Company D, 1st Battalion, 61st Infantry Regiment and the Basic Combat Training Soldiers are continuing to face new fitness challenges.

They are fresh off of Basic Rifleman Marksmanship qualification, and Monday morning they stood — cold, but inspired — ready to tackle the Fit to Win Course.

Fit to Win is a 900-meter obstacle course comprised of 20 obstacles designed to test a Soldier's physical fitness. Soldiers jog the entire course while negotiating barriers that require them to hurdle, crawl, jump and climb. While most obstacles can be completed alone, teamwork is encouraged by drill sergeants reminding Soldiers to wait until the whole team has finished one obstacle before moving on to the next one.

course, we're trying to instill confidence not only in the individual, but a sense of accomplishment as a team," said Staff Sgt. David Paspuino, a Company D drill sergeant. "So, not only do Soldiers help one another through certain obstacles, it also helps with unit cohecharge, acknowledged the chilly weather, but offered Soldiers some comforting words.

"It's a little cold out here right now, but y'all are about to get warmed up real quick," he said.

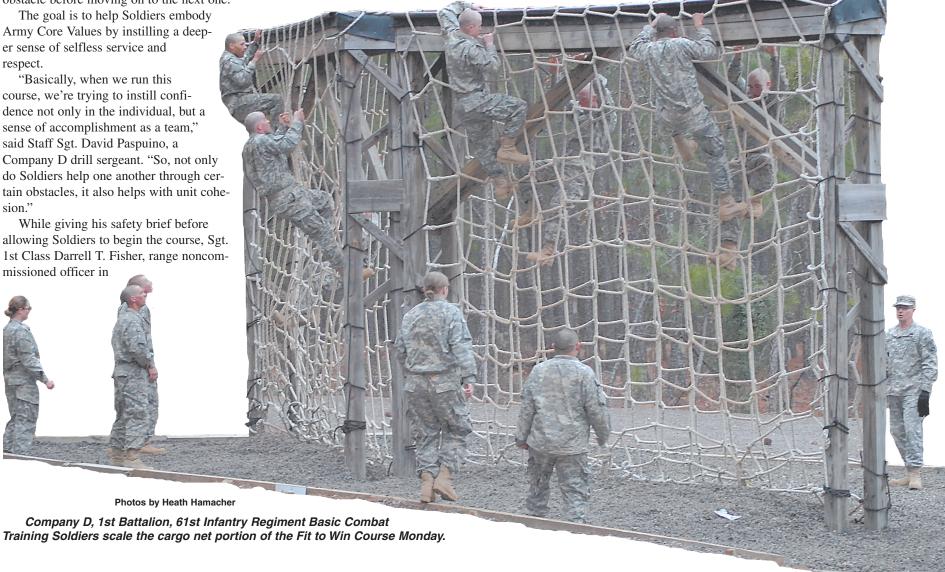

As one squad after the next lined up single-file to attack the obstacles, Co. D's motivation was evident. Soldiers bounced up and down with pent up energy. Shouts of "let's go!" and "you can make it!" resonated. Equally evident was the disparity in athletic ability among Soldiers, as some breezed over and through obstacle after obstacle while others struggled. But, in the end, the "Delta Dragons" finished the Fit to Win Course as a team. As a unit.

And, in 31 more days, they will graduate BCT as a

Petraeus takes command of Multinational Force Iraq

Sat. Sara Wood

American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 — Acknowledging the challenges ahead and pledging full effort, Army Gen. David H. Petraeus took the helm of the top U.S. command in Iraq on Feb. 10 in Baghdad.

Petraeus, who was promoted to general just before the change-of-command ceremony, assumed command from Army Gen. George W. Casey Jr., who has led Multinational Force Iraq since July 2004. Petraeus previously commanded the U.S. Army Combined Arms Center and Fort Leavenworth, Kan. Casey is set to become the next Army chief of staff.

"This morning's ceremony truly is a humbling experience for me, and the challenges ahead are substantial," Petraeus said after officially taking command. "The rucksack of responsibility is very heavy. In truth, it is too heavy for any one person to bear, and we will all have to share the burdens and move forward together. If we can do that and if we can help the people of Iraq do likewise, then the prospects for success are good."

Petraeus thanked Casey for his leadership and sacrifices, and pledged to give the service members and civilians of MNFI the best leadership and direction he can provide.

The coalition's job in the coming months will be to work with Iraqi forces to improve security so the Iraqi government can resolve economic issues and improve basic services, he said.

"The way ahead will be hard, and there undoubtedly will be many tough days," Petraeus said. "As I recently told the members of the United States Senate, however, 'hard' is not 'hopeless'; indeed, together with our Iraqi partners, we can and we must prevail."

In relinquishing command, Casey noted the progress Iraq has made since it achieved its sovereignty.

After the fall of Saddam Hussein, Iraqis were totally dependent on the coalition for security, he said. Now, through the unwavering support of the Iraqi people and security forces and coalition forces, Iraq is on the verge of taking responsibility for its own security by the end of this year, he said.

"The past that brought us to this point has not been easy, but it has been part of a concerted effort to build an Iraq that can secure, sustain and govern itself," Casey said. "Freedom isn't free, and it never has been. It happens through blood, sweat and determination, and you have brought all of those things to this fight."

Casey said the challenge of overcoming sectarian violence and building a representative government is one the coalition can help with, but that will ultimately rest on the shoulders of the Iraqis themselves. He said he is optimistic about the future of Iraq because he believes in the inherent desire of all people to live in freedom. The general added that he sees Iraqis taking charge of their future.

Casey also expressed confidence in the competence and professionalism of the men and women of the coalition.

"You are the best fighting force in the world, and you bring intellect, drive, compassion, courage and commitment to this mission," he said. "I see it every day in the conduct of your duties, and I also have growing confidence in the men and women of the Iraqi security forces. And I have no doubt that they will emerge over the coming years as the dominant security forces in Iraq."

Army Gen. John Abizaid, commander of U.S. Central Command, noted Casey's

many accomplishments while commanding in Iraq, such as facilitating national elections, combat actions, building institutions, and developing leaders.

"Thank you for your calm, professional leadership, for your toughness, for your wise counsel to those both above and below your level of command," Abizaid said to Casey. "Most important, thank you for your patient support of a great people in their new destiny. History will smile upon your accomplishments."

Abizaid also spoke about the challenges facing Iraq. No nation in the modern age can allow murderers and terrorists to kill without remorse or intimidation, torture and extortion to rule above the law, he said. Sectarian violence and division have no place in the future of Iraq, a nation that is great because of its ability to overcome ethnic and religious differences, he said.

"Stand together and take your rightful place in the modern world," Abizaid said to the Iraqi leaders at the ceremony. "The United States and the international community stand ready to assist you, but the choice between violence and prosperity can only be made by you. Let all of us work together to build the new Iraq. Let Iraq claim its rightful place as a nation of strength and justice for all of its citizens."

Make saving a labor of love through the 'Military Saves Campaign'

Financial Readiness Program

Many of us are saving for our future, but the statistics do not show it. FACT: after retirement, 81 percent of Americans' only source of income will be Social Security and they will live below the poverty line.

ACS's financial readiness team encourages Soldiers, civilians, family members and retirees to log onto www.militarysaves.org and pledge to save. It's easy and painless to do. It can be for a vacation you want to go on in the future or a pledge to pay off current or old debt that you owe. After pledging to save, you will begin receiving a quarterly newsletter with a host of information designed to assist with getting out of debt and taking charge of your financial future.

You will also be given the opportunity to sign up for the Thrift Savings Plan immediately after registering with the Military Saves Program. The financial readiness team encourages everyone to enroll in TSP and contribute at least the 2007 pay increase (2 percent), even if you are already saving money in investments, savings, TSP, etc. ACS's financial readiness team suggests everyone log onto the Web site and use the financial savings tool.

Why should I start saving now? How do I start? How much should I save? Where should I put my money? Kimberly Bottema, ACS's financial specialist, has been asked these questions many times and the answer is always, "We all must begin our savings NOW!" Bottema said, "It's all about saving the money now so that it has time for compound interest to take effect over the long haul."

First, everyone should establish an emergency savings fund. Financial planners state you should have 3-6 months of living expenses set aside for emergencies. Bottema advises her clients to have at least one month living expenses set aside because when a military member has a true financial emergency Army Emergency Relief is available for them to fall back on.

Second, once the emergency savings fund is set up, it is time to think about investments and retirement funds. The goal should be at least 10 percent saved each pay period for retirement. There are several retirement options available — Traditional IRA, Roth IRA, and Thrift Savings Plan, to name a few. Traditional IRA contributions are tax deferred and the growth on the funds withdrawn at retirement age will be taxed. With a Roth IRA you pay taxes on the contributions now while all the growth and compound interest at retirement age is withdrawn tax-free.

The third and easiest way to save is Thrift Savings Plan.

To sign up, go to your MyPay account online at https://mypay.dfas.mil/mypay.aspx and click on TSP. Users can invest any percentage of money to TSP up to the maximum amount allowed by IRS. TSP is a tax deferred plan, so investing in TSP will be an immediate tax advantage to you and your family.

Now, back to the previous questions.

Why should I start saving now? Compound interest.

How do I start? Easy — TSP

How much should I save? Recommended 10 percent, if you can't afford that, then at least 2 percent

Where should I put my money? Use your goals, risk tolerance, and timeline to guide in your investing.

Call ACS's Financial Readiness Program at 751-5256 with any questions.

parers do all the work and file it electronically.

Tax center services are free to Soldiers, their family members and retirees, and the center is staffed by Fort Jackson permanent party Soldiers from various units who have volunteered their time to assist in preparing taxes. All Soldiers preparing taxes are certified Volunteer Income Tax Preparers.

Qualifying persons entitled to tax assistance will be required to make an appointment and bring all appropriate documentation to their appointment. Documentation needed includes a valid Social Security card for all family members, federal wages forms (W-2), interest statements, investment dividend forms and 2005 tax returns. Other important information may include bank/investment statements, other income statements or property taxes and interest paid on homes and mortgages.

This year, tax center workers will also prepare state income tax returns for those states that allow volunteer income tax preparers to provide assistance in filing their forms. If the Tax Center is unable to prepare your state return, they will provide all the tax forms needed for that state.

Tax center volunteers are gearing up to work with Basic Combat Training and Advanced Individual Training Soldiers.

"Next month we will be helping BCT and AIT Soldiers. We will coordinate with S3 shops and go out to the units, hopefully working around their training schedules," Roten said.

Individuals will be seen on an appointment-basis only. Appointments can be scheduled from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Call 751-JTAX to set up an appointment. The tax center will make a determination based on client needs if any weekend appointments will be available.

Firehouse Productions breathes new life into old station

Theresa O'Hagan

Morale, Welfare and Recreation

In early December, the old firehouse on Marion Avenue began transforming into Firehouse Productions, a new facility for Morale, Welfare and Recreation.

Firehouse Productions offers unique, one-of-a-kind specialty items for every need. Each item is made to meet the specific needs of each customer. From embroidery to engraving to large format poster prints and everything in between, the staff at Firehouse Productions is ready to serve their customers.

Firehouse Productions takes its name from the building which, once upon a time, was a Fire Station, then the Army Family Team Building office, and now a store and on-site production area. Firehouse Productions began in the back area of the Solomon Center with its products being sold and ordered through the Retail Zone more than seven years ago.

"Now we are more visible and we can serve our customers better," said Colin Henderson, graphic artist and production supervisor. "We have been able to cut down our turn-around time and make better use of our equipment."

Ritchie Brabham, administrative and equipment supervisor, agrees.

"This is a prime location. We are on everyone's way to work. We have more room for our equipment and can work on a larger scale."

The new space also allowed for a crystal blast engraving system that can engrave black and white images, such as photographs on glass, mirrors and other smooth surfaces. Firehouse Productions has done anniversary gifts, retirement gifts and more with the new system.

Some of the equipment is large — very large. The bay, which once housed two fire trucks, doesn't even dwarf the embroidery machines, which are usually humming along embroidering guidons, shirts, hats and more — each one exactly as the customer requested.

The transition began in December and staff members, with a little help from other MWR employees, painted, retiled floors, put in counters and built shelves while customers continued to come.

"We were open from the beginning. We took and filled orders as we fixed the building," Henderson said.

John Keegan, chief, Marketing and New Ventures, oversaw the project.

"I'm excited about the enthusiastic and professional team we developed and what we can do for our customers and the installation," Keegan said.

The most popular items are embroidered polo shirts, embroidered guidons for framing, photo T-shirts and mugs, coins and large engraved plaques. "If you can think of it, we can do it," Brabham said.

"I liked fixing the building. It gives you a sense of pride to be doing the work yourself on your facility. You are doing something that is for the good of all," Henderson said.

Henderson takes s great pride in the knowledge that firefighters who once called the station home approve of the changes. "They were happy to see it was preserved and not torn down."

sealants

The dentist A cleans the area to remove food and debris in and around the tooth, and then makes sure the teeth are dry so that the sealant can stick. The sealant is applied in liquid form and flows over and into the chewing surface of the teeth. The sealant usually hardens (sets) within minutes, or it is set with a special light.

How can I prevent needing a sealant?

Remember, sealants work well, but they can't keep your child cavity free without some help. Good oral care at home is still important.

Help your child:

- 1. Brush twice a day with a pea-size amount of fluoride tooth-paste, and floss between teeth that touch each other.

To use a pacifier, or not to use a pacifier?

That is the question

DENTAC

There is much debate regarding the use of pacifiers, but there is evidence showing both pros and cons, according to a report that appeared in the January issue of General Dentistry.

Parents should be aware of the effects of pacifier sucking on an infant's oral health.

Prolonged use can cause problems with the proper growth of the mouth, alignment of the teeth and changes in the shape of the roof of the mouth.

Tips and recommendations after prolonged use.

for pacifier use:

- 1. Pacifier use should be restricted to the time when the infant is falling asleep.
- 2. Pacifiers can cause severe cuts if the shield is held inside the lips.
- 3. Look for a pacifier with ventilation holes in the shield, as they permit air passage if accidentally lodged in the child's throat. 4.To prevent strangulation, do not place a cord around a child's neck to hold the pacifier.

Common tooth problems: being prepared is half the battle

DENTAC

Thousands of dental emergencies — from injuries to a painful, abscessed tooth — take place every day. What if you had a bad toothache in the middle of the night and couldn't get to a dentist until the next day? Knowing what to do can lessen the pain and save a tooth that might otherwise be lost.

Toothache

Rinse the mouth with warm water to clean it out. Gently use dental floss to remove food or debris that might be caught between the teeth. Never put aspirin or any other painkiller against the gums near the aching tooth. This could burn the gum tissue. Don't rely on painkillers. They may temporarily relieve pain but your dentist should evaluate the condition.

Knocked-out (avulsed) tooth

First, try to find the tooth. Hold the tooth by the crown and rinse the root in water if the tooth is dirty. Don't scrub it or remove any attached tissue fragments. If possible, gently insert and hold the tooth in its socket while you head to the dentist. If that is not possible, put it in a cup of milk and bring it to the dentist. Time is critical for successful reimplantation, so get to your dentist imme-

Tongue or lip bites or wounds

Clean the area gently with a clean cloth and apply cold compress to reduce any swelling. If the bleeding can't be controlled, go to a hospital emergency room or clinic.

Objects caught between teeth

Try to gently remove any object stuck between the teeth with dental floss. Never use a sharp object to remove any object that is stuck between your teeth. If you can't dislodge the object with floss, contact your dentist.

Possible broken jaw

Apply cold compress to control swelling. Get to the hospital emergency room immediately.

Cases of the Week

A civilian was charged with Shoplifting after she was observed by Army and Air Force Exchange Services security removing a 50 percent discount sticker from a jacket and replacing it with a 75 percent discount sticker. The civilian then removed a 50 percent discount sticker and placed it on a pair of sweat pants, and then again placed a 75 percent discount sticker on the tag of another pair of sweat pants. The estimated cost of potential loss was $33.62.

A contract security officer noticed an odor of marijuana emitting from a vehicle as it attempted to enter the installation. The two civilians were stopped for Simple Possession. Upon arrival of Department of the Army police, the civilian gave verbal consent to search the vehicle. The search resulted in approximately 62 grams of marijuana being found. The civilians were detained and transported to Criminal Investigation Division for further investigation. The vehicle was inventoried and released to the driver's sponsor.

A Soldier attempted to alter a prescription for a controlled drug and was charged with Attempted Larceny of a Controlled Substance Alter/Remove of Public Record. The Soldier attempted to receive 28 doses of the controlled medication instead of the 18 that was originally prescribed.

Morale, Welfare and Recreation personnel reported to the Provost Marshal Office a Larceny of Government Property and Housebreaking. It was discovered that unknown persons forcibly gained access to a storage building and removed property estimated at $16,405. Some of the items reported stolen included a John Deere Gator and Tractor. If you have any information on this or other larcenies, please contact PMO at 751-3115/3114.

Provost Marshal Tip of the Week

When driving on the installation at night or during the early morning, look for deer and other animals crossing the roadways. In areas of the installation, deer and water fowl cross the roads in high traffic areas such as housing and near the 120th Adjutant General Battalion (Reception). Use caution. Striking one of these animals can cause moderate to severe damage to your vehicle and could result in a more serious accident.

10 keys to a successful marriage

Chaplain (Maj.) Michael Pope Task Force Marshall

Spouses need to work at their relationship every day to build strong marriages. Here are the first five of 10 keys that will help a marriage grow as well as improve the personal relationship between spouses if these keys are applied. God bless:

- 1. Commitment: It is important that a couple understand there will be problems in their marriage. It is vital to build the guard rail of commitment to each other, no matter what they encounter.
- 2. Honesty: Honesty builds trust and trust builds faith in one another. Nothing is worse than trying to build a strong marriage on a foundation of broken promises and lies.
- 3. Communication: "An old couple was sitting by the fireside. He looked over at her, had a romantic thought and said, 'After 50 years, I've found you tried and true.' His wife didn't hear very well, so she said, 'What?' He repeated, 'After 50 years I've found you tried and true.' She replied, 'After 50 years, I'm tired of you too."

Pastor Charles Curtis stresses the importance of communication:

"My husband does not talk to me," is the complaint of 80 percent of American wives. It has been claimed that "100 percent of the people seeking professional help for their marriage have problems of communication."

- 4. Forgiveness: This is not a free ticket for the offending party. It costs a great deal to forgive someone and seek reconciliation. I would hazard to say it is the one area that couples need to seek to be an expert. You can have a marriage without forgiveness, but you can't enjoy fellowship within the marriage unless you forgive one another.
- 5. Fidelity: It is so unfortunate that this is one of the greatest problems in marriages, broken trust in the area of marital fidelity. There can be forgiveness for infidelity, and the marriage can continue, but what is lost can never be replaced. Think hard and long before you fall to this temptation. God can forgive the sin, but the consequences can last for years.

Editor's note: See next week's Leader for the remaining five keys to a successful marriage.

Getting enough sleep is good; natural sleep is better

Sandra Barnes

Army Substance Abuse Program

Just like eating healthy and exercising, adequate sleep is essential to your overall health.

The amount of sleep each person needs depends on many factors, including age. For most adults, seven to eight hours a night appears to be the optimum amount of sleep, although some people may need as few as five hours or as many as 10 hours of sleep each day.

Getting too little sleep creates a "sleep debt," which is much like being overdrawn at a bank. Eventually, your body will demand that the debt be repaid. Although we may not like to admit it, most sleep problems are acquired from bad behavior.

Here are some tips to help get a good night's sleep:

- Stick to a sleep schedule
- Exercise is great but not too late in the day
 - Avoid caffeine and nicotine
 - · Avoid alcoholic drinks before bed
- Avoid large meals and beverages late
- Avoid medicines that delay or disrupt your sleep
 - Don't take naps after 3 p.m.
 - Relax before bed
 - Take a hot bath before bed If sleep problems continue, see a doctor. Many people with sleep problems often turn to sleeping pills for a quick fix to help them fall asleep and stay asleep.

It is best to discuss the problem with your doctor first, instead of reaching for medication. A body can develop a tolerance after the first couple of weeks. Sleeping pills also have side effects and can be addictive.

If your best attempts to get a good night's sleep have failed, over-the-counter or prescription sleeping pills may be an option, but they must be used safely. Sleeping pills can be helpful for short-term problems when the cause of the problem is understood — such as jet-lag, adjusting to a shift-work rotation, the loss of a loved one and the anticipation of a stressful event.

When taking sleep medications, it is wise to:

Educate yourself thoroughly about the drugs available, side effects and any interactions with medications currently being taken. Never combine alcohol and medications.

Follow directions closely - don't ignore label instructions or warning labels. Never take more than the recommended dose.

Pay attention to your body, emotions and actions to determine if any negative side effects are occurring.

Use the medications intermittently,

ASAP Calendar of Events

Unit Prevention Leader training will be held from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Feb. 21-23 at 3250 Sumter Ave. It is required training for newly assigned unit prevention leaders and includes training on drugs and alcohol, biochemical testing and substance abuse prevention. Seating is limited, and the duty uniform is required. Please do not schedule appointments during class time.

The Fort Jackson ASAP Unit Prevention Leader of the Year Award is designed to recognize outstanding performance by the best Unit Prevention Leader on Fort Jackson.

UPLs must qualify for the award by conducting a flawless urinalysis collection, passing urinalysis inspection, having a Standard Operating Procedure and providing four hours required annual training to Soldiers in their unit.

Editor's Note: The Army
Substance Abuse Program provides prevention/education to the community on topics pertaining to alcohol and other drug usage.
ASAP maintains a wide selection of pamphlets and videos that can be used to get a further understanding of the dynamics of substance abuse and use. ASAP staff is available to give presentations on alcohol and drug abuse. For questions about classes offered or about substance abuse, call 751-5007.

rather than nightly, to decrease the negative effects and the effectiveness when you do use them.

Don't Drive — sleeping pills impair the ability to function in tasks that require alertness, so don't do anything that involves a high level of concentration.

Ask your doctor for specific instructions for decreasing or terminating use Finally, talk to a doctor if you are having trouble getting good, refreshing sleep each night. Together, possible reasons can be identified for the sleeping difficulty and then appropriate measures can be taken to correct the problem.

The 411 on Soldier's last will and testament

Capt. Chris Roten

Legal Assistance attorney

Often, clients are confused about whether they need a will. This article will address some common questions asked about wills, and will help you determine if having one made or updated is in your best interest.

Last will and testament

A last will and testament is the legal document that controls the disposition of your property at death and may provide for guardianship of your children after your death. A will is not effective until you die. As long as you are living, your will has no effect and no property or rights to property are transferred by it.

Changing last will and testament

Changes to a will are made by drafting a new will and destroying the old one, or by adding a "codicil." A codicil is a legal document which must be signed and executed in the same manner as your will. Never make any changes to your will without consulting an attorney. Changes on the face of your original may make it invalid.

State of legal residence

Your legal residence is the state in which you have your true, fixed and permanent home and to which, if you are temporarily absent, you intend to return.

Voting, paying taxes, owning property, motor vehicle registration and so on, are some indicators of one's legal residence of a state. You cannot be a citizen at large. If you are a naturalized U.S. citizen, you are considered to be a resident of the state in which you were naturalized. Your legal residence may affect where your will is probated and the amount of state inheritance or estate tax that may be paid at death.

Totaling an estate

Your estate consists of all of your property and personal belongings which you own or are entitled to possess at the time of your death. This includes real and personal property, cash, savings and checking accounts, stocks, bonds, real estate, automobiles, etc.

Although the proceeds of insurance policies may be considered part of your estate in some states, a will does not change the designated beneficiaries of an insurance policy. The proceeds of an insurance policy will normally pass to the primary or secondary beneficiary designated on the face of the policy.

Leaving an estate to a beneficiary

A person who receives property through a will is known as a beneficiary. You may leave all of your property to one beneficiary, or you may wish to divide your estate among several people.

You may state in your will that several different items of property or sums of money will go to different people. In any event, you should decide on at least two levels of beneficiaries: primary beneficiaries — those who will inherit your property upon your death; and secondary beneficiaries — those who will inherit your property in the event the primary beneficiaries die before you. You may even want to select a third-level beneficiary in the event that both the primary and secondary beneficiaries die before you.

Disposing an estate

In South Carolina, a married person cannot completely exclude a spouse. Generally, you are free to give your property to whomever you desire. However, most states have laws which entitle spouses to at least part of the other spouse's estate.

This statutory share ranges generally from one-third to one-half of the other spouse's estate. Some states, such as Louisiana, also provide shares of the estate to children of the decedent.

If you have questions concerning the statutory share law in your home state, you should ask a legal assistance attorney.

Editor's note: This is the first of a two-part series regarding a last will and testament. For part two, please read next week's issue of the Leader.

Legal Assistance Office

Fort Jackson's Legal Assistance Office is located in the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, 9475 Kershaw Rd., and is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Thursday. Appointments can be made by calling 751-4287.

The office accepts walk-ins for living wills, health care powers of attorney and durable powers of attorney, 1:30-3:30 p.m, Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Walk-ins are welcome for general legal questions and are accepted 1:30-4 p.m., Wednesdays.

1-34 trails 2-60, rallies for 53-44 win

Chris Rasmussen Leader Staff

Despite trailing by 10 points during the first half, 1st Battalion, 34th Infantry Regiment battled back for a win over the 2nd Battalion, 60th Infantry Regiment during intramural basketball action Monday at Vanguard Gym. 2-60 jumped ahead 10-2 with 14 minutes remaining in the first half thanks to solid shooting by Rickey Jackson, who scored 14 points, and Gary Jimenez, who added 8 points.

Down 15-5 with 11:50 remaining in the first half, 1-34 then went on a scoring run to edge 2-60, 16-15 with 7:43 left on the clock.

"We started to play as a team and good things started happening," said guard Jose Pacheo, who led the way for 1-34 with 14 points in the first half. "We just needed to warm up and let things flow."

The two teams traded baskets for the most part for the remainder of the first half, with 2-60 leading 30-29 at halftime.

To start the second half, 2-60 pulled ahead quickly, thanks in part to a barrage of 3-point shots by Jimenez, leading 39-30 with 15:08 left in the game.

Tough defense by 1-34 allowed them right back into the game, tying the score 39-39 with 6:50 remaining. After trading baskets for a few minutes, 1-34 pulled ahead 45-39 with 3:30 left in the game.

1-34 held on to win 53-44.

"I really think the reason we won was because of our great defense. Our offense was flowing too, but our defense was tight," Pacheo said.

"We held them at the right moments and scored when we needed to. It was a great game for us," he said.

Forward Willie Belton, who arrived after the start of the game, helped provide that defensive boost, grabbing several rebounds, loose balls and blocking three shots.

1-34 is now 1-3 in intramural play, 2-3 overall. 2-60 is now 4-1 in intramural play, 4-1 overall.

Overall leading scorers in the game for 1-34 were Pacheo with 16 points, Reggie Demmons with 14 points including two 3-point shots and Joey Moore, who scored 7 points. Belton added 4.

2-60's leading scorers were Jimenez with 17 points, including three 3-pointers; Jackson with 14 points, including two treys; Terrence Bizzell with 5 points; John Ulrick with 3 points; and coach Adrian Glover scored 2 points.
